Monongahela Bad Man Is Under Arrest

Sloane Daugherty, a well known young man of Monongahela City, was arrested late last night charged with being implicated in the Finleyville bank robbery last May. His arrest took place following a raid in a shanty on the outskirts of Pittsburgh. He is alleged to have made the boast that he was one of the men who took part in the holdup of the Metropolitan Trust empany last week, securing $2,500. Following the Finleyville bank robbery, he was arrested on suspicion and held in jail for a long time, only securing his release following the arrest of Jack Hogan, who was this week convicted of being implicated in the theft. Hogan is to be sentenced on Monday. Daugherty it is claimed, has been dyeing his hair, which was originally red.

The arrest was made by City Detectives James Noon, John Cullen, Edward Brophy, John Kerr, and Joseph Moriarity, armed with riot guns, who surrounded the shanty after trailing a truck driver from 206 Stockton avenue. With Daugherty the detectives arrested Paul Woods, aged 25, his father, Jonathan Woods, aged 50, and also Clara Woods the latter of 206 Stockton avenue.

The police had learned that Paul Woods would send yesterday to the home of his sister for clothing, so watched a truck driver who stopped in front of the house. The driver admitted he had been sent for a trunk for the younger Woods. The detectives followed him to the Aspen way address.

As the truck stopped at the shanty which had barrels piled high around it, the detectives, after ordering the driver to keep the engine running surrounded the building. Paul Woods is said to have stepped out, his hand in his hip pocket, where he had a revolver, police say.

He was ordered to throw up his hands and was disarmed. Detectives went into the house at the same address and arrested Daugherty and the elder Woods. Daugherty is said to have had two automatic pistols. In the shanty, the detectives say, they found a suit case packed with steel jacketed bullet cartridges. Several rifles also were found.

The three men were lodged in Central Station with Miss Woods who was placed in custody shortly before the truck left her house with the trunk.

Although, after a severe grilling, last night, the younger Woods and Daugherty, maintained they knew nothing of the Penn avenue bank robbery, the detectives say they do not believe them. The two are said to have made admissions, however, concerning a number of other robberies. A month ago, they are reported to have told the detectives they held up the driver of a truck laden with whiskey, in McKeesport, and after taking more than $1,000 from the driver, ordered him off at the point of a revolver.

That there may be additional light shed upon the Finleyville bank robbery of last May 28, was brought out in the admission of the two, the detectives say, of the robbery of a hardware store in Finleyville.

The robbery of the hardware store occurred several weeks ago. The two said, according to the detectives, they gained entrance through a sky light. They stole, the detectives say, loot valued at close to $1,500 and among it was the suitcase filled with cartridges.

Homemade Movies

Monessen can boast of having movie talent right in her midst as a moving picture featuring Misses Louise Pehl, Marie BeCaskey, Mary James and Mary Bartish and Mr. John O'Connor, Rinard Woods, Alfred Allen and Charles Edwards, entitled "The Thirteenth Proposal," will be shown at the Star theatre next Tuesday and Wednesday.

The picture was made by the management of the theatre after a cast had been selected from a contest. Louise Pehl and John O'Conner appear in the leading parts. Miss Pehl is supported by Miss Marie BeCaskey, who takes the part of her chum. Rinard Woods appears as "Spiggy," the comedian. Alfred Allen portrays the part of Teddy's father. Charles Edwards as an inventor of a new aeroplane and Misses Mary Bartish and Mary James complete the cast. Roy McShaffrey wrote the story and photographed the picture while Rene Lorraine supervised the direction. This picture will appear next Tuesday and Wednesday at the Star theatre at 12:30, 2:15, 4:00, 5:45, 7:30 and 9:15. 11x

Rehearsal Tonight

There will be a dress rehearsal with a pageant this evening at seven o'clock in the High school auditorium. There will be approximately 200 in the cast. The admission for children will be 25 cents. This will be a very pleasing entertainment and all who attend will enjoy it. Don't forget this evening.

Mother Dead

Miss Anna Kingsley, teacher in the high school, received word yesterday of the death of her mother at her home in Mansfield, Pa. Miss Kingsley was not here when the message came, she having gone to Elizabeth, N. J., for a brief visit and it was with some difficulty that she was communicated with. However, the news reached her, as Prof. Gress received a telegram last night that she was on her way to Mansfield.

Narrow Escape

Ross Ridgley, the well known auto dealer of Donora had a narrow escape from serious injury or death yesterday afternoon, when, while driving his car in Carrick, a woman suddenly stepped out from behind a street car, directly into the path of Mr. Ridgley's machine. Other pedestrians believing that the woman was about to be struck, turned their heads, but Mr. Ridgley, an experienced driver, with a quick presence of mind, turned his car away from the woman striking a telegraph poll. He was thrown from the machine by the collision which demolished the front wheel and axle of the machine. The woman walked away as though nothing had hapened.

Well Known Man Dead

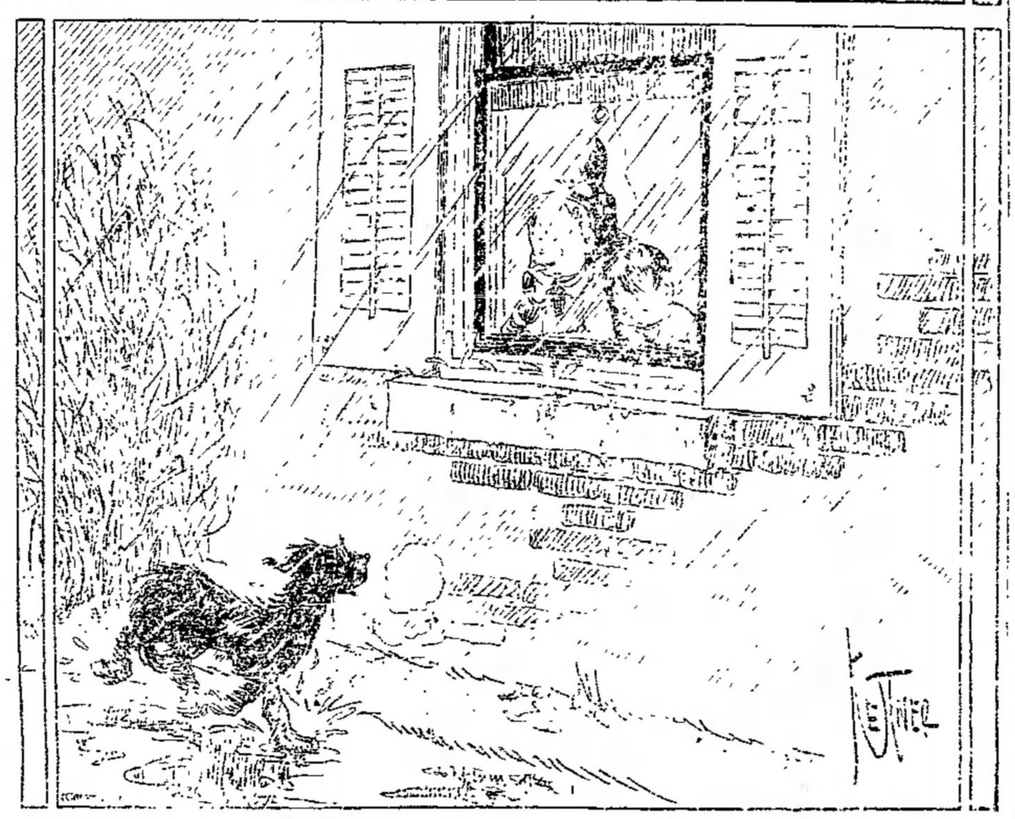
William E. Lane, former treasurer of Washington county, died suddenly at his home in Washington last night. He was 54 years of age and up until Thursday night had enjoyed the best of health. He attended the football game in Pittsburgh Thanksgiving Day and upon his return in the evening was taken ill with acute indigestion, his death occurring last night. Funeral will be held Monday from his late home at 2:30, with interment in the Washington cemetery.

Constitution Changes

Harrisburg, Nov. 26—Copies of changes in the Constitution of Pennsylvania favored by the Constitutional Revision Commission will be placed before the members in printed form within a week so that they can make their studies before the final meetings the week of December 13.

A strong effort will be made to declare for a constitutional convention. Some of the members of the commission favor submission (of only amendments considered vital, while others believe the work of the commission should be submitted to the Legislature as the basis of a program for a constitutional convention. The question of a constitutional convention would be passed upon by the people.

The Melancholy Days Have Come



FAYETTE CITY LUMBER CO. YARDS SAVED FROM DE= STRUCTION BY WORKMEN

Firebugs continued their reign of terror in the upper Monongahela valley last night with an attempt to destroy the Fayette City Lumber company, one of the largest contracting firms in this vicinity. Huge quantities of waste saturated with grease and oil were placed over the top and around the sides of a sliding door leading to the entrance of the yards, and this was set afire.

Fortunately, workmen on their way to work in nearby mines at 5:30 this morning, saw the blaze before it had gained great headway, and tearing the burning waste from about the doors, undoubtedly saved the huge yards from destruction. Hundreds of thousands of feet of lumber was stored in the yards and if the fire had not been discovered in time it would probably have meant a heavy loss.

Almost all the fires reported from the upper Monongahela valley during the past few weeks have been in the vicinity of Fayette City and it is believed that the fiend is located in that section. Members of the American Legion are on guard every night at the school houses in that vicinity and the citizens of the little town are binding themselves together as a vigilance committee and will take turns in guarding the town during the night as the place is without police protection.

State authorities, accompanied by members of the State Constabulary, have visited Fayette City and are making a careful investigation of the fires in hopes of apprehending the guilty party or parties. It is estimated that the fire loss in the upper Monongahela Valley during the past month will exceed $200,000. Included in this estimate are three home fires, five school houses, one barn, dance hall and three homes, all of which are thought to be of incendiary origin.

Congress May Be Forced To Issue Long Term Bonds

By HERBERT WALKER
(United Press Staff Correspondent.)

Washington, Nov. 27.—The next Congress may be confronted with the necessity of either increasing tax rates or providing for another issue of long term bonds, according to preliminary surveys of the financial situation made for members of the House ways and means committee by treasury officials.

Present indications are that the chances are poor for even slight reduction of a few of the most onerous taxes. Some increased issues, particularly on non-essentials, will be recommended by the secretary of the treasury when congress reconvenes according to reports at the capitol.

The probability of increases is not brought about through increased government expenditures. Republicans plan to reduce these.

The reason is that the present rates are beginning to yield far less than during the years of big war profits.

The report department treasury officials believe will at a big hole in the yield of the excess profits tax, which has brought in a large percentage of the government revenues. Government experts, carrying high average of the tremendous war debt of the country, the interest of which amounts to only $1,250,000,000 a year.

Secretary of the treasury Houston has just stated that for 1921 the government expenditures will total $4,000,000,000. Republican congressional leaders have to make this total by reduction

This won't make reserves of $2,000,000,000 necessary. The belief prevails on the reports reaching Congressmen that the present taxes will not be yielding at the rate of $3,000,000,000 annually.

Representative Kitchin, of North Carolina, leader of the present minority in the house, is inclined to think there will be no big demand for the repeal or revision of the excess profits tax by Congress next year.

"The reason is that if the present slump continues on many less people will have excess profits to be taxed," he said. "The excess profits tax, due to the fact that the current depression is so that the tax was not payable on it for the era of high prices. He has a point."

SPY DEPORTED

(By United Press)

New York, Nov. 27. Frank Von Rintelen, German spy released from Atlanta prison on condition that he return to Germany, as due in New York on his way back. He is under $5,000 bond to leave this country by January 1.

BANQUET EMPLOYEES

The proprietors of the Philadelphia Racquet club feed their employees, numbering about twelve, a sumptuous three course dinner on Thanksgiving Day. The establishment was closed during the noon hour and the men enjoyed the banquet prepared in the kitchen.

REVOKE ORDER

Fire Follows Mysterious Explosions

(By United Press)

Cork, Ireland, Nov. 27—Following a number of bomb explosions in the principal streets of the city several large shops burst into flames. The loss is estimated at $250,000. Spectators stated that Black and Tan police prevented fire engines from fighting the flames.

Dublin, Nov. 27.—British government agents were reported today to have discovered evidence in the series of raids now under way which link up Sinn Fein leaders with officers of the Republican army in the "murder campaign."

According to unofficial reports the Sinn Fein officials were principally active in collecting funds for the army, which was said to have planned the more important slayings of British police men and officials.

Twenty important arrests had been made up to an early hour today including those of Arthur Griffith, acting head of the Sinn Fein; Prof. McNeil and Eamonn Duggan. The latter two are members of parliament. It was believed that all of those arrested would be interned. Hundreds of others were taken.

Announcement was made today that the labor commission would come to Ireland on Tuesday to investigate reprisals.

To Quash Suit

(By United Press)

Minden, Nev., Nov. 27.—Mary Pickford, the motion picture star, through her lawyers here today made an effort to quash the suit brought by the state of Nevada to annul her divorce from Owen Moore.

Since obtaining a divorce from Moore, Miss Pickford has married Douglas Fairbanks. The state's suit to annul the decree was filed on the ground that Miss Pickford falsely represented that she intended to make Nevada her home when she instituted her action in this state's courts.

Javin McNab, San Francisco, and W. A. McCarren, Reno, were the lawyers representing Mary Pickford here today. They were ready to argue in support of her action that the state's suit to annul be quashed. They contended the superior court has no jurisdiction in the case, and that the state is not a proper plaintiff in such a proceeding. Attorney General W. S. Rosler appeared personally for the state.

There were no famous film stars present. It was understood, however, that both Miss Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks were keeping in close touch with the proceedings by telegraph and telephone.

Fords Collide

A rather serious automobile wreck occurred at about eight o'clock last last evening on the new road between Monongahela and Donora. Two Fords, traveling in opposite directions, attempted to pass when they were beneath the mine tipple, near Black Diamond and as a result they came together, head on, practically demolishing both cars. Fortunately the occupants escaped without serious injury.

Call Out Troops

(By United Press)

Camp Sherman, O., Nov. 27—A provisional battalion of 500 picked men for the Third and Nineteenth infantry regiments left here today for Williamson, W. Va., where they will do guard duty at Williamson, Chatterey and Matewan. Trouble has arisen among striking miners in Mingo county and more guards. No request has been received by Governor Cox, staff for a declaration of martial law in the county.

Held For Court

Uniontown, Pa., Nov. 26.—Ten of 20 Fayette county men arrested on charges of illegal liquor selling as a result of investigations conducted by the "committee of 100," were arraigned today before Alderman Matt Allen. All except one of the accused men, Harry McDowell of Uniontown, against whom a warrant had been sworn out by mistake were held for court under $1,000 bail each. The other 10 will be given hearings Monday.

When Joe Bondi, Fayette City confectionery and grocery store proprietor was arraigned the detective who testified against him told of buying "moonshine" in Bondi's store for $6 a quart and of Bondi improvising a modelof a "moonshine" still, using soda straws and other fountain utensils in its construction, when the detective asked how the liquor was manufactured.

A great difference in prices for whiskey was shown in the testimony against the accused men. F. C. Monaghan, proprietor of the Fayette Chemical company, Fayette City, and George Weinman, employe of the establishment, selling whiskey for $7 a pint, according to the testimony, while Eli Jakovic of Uniontown, it was testified, charged only $5 a quart for "agood grade of whiskey."

The five others held were accused of dispensing Jamaica ginger in Uniontown. They are John Janc and Mike Goodish, grocery store proprietors; Isaac Joseph, a fruit store proprietor; Sam Weiss, a restaurant proprietor and his waiter, John Celia.

When McDowell was arraigned it was explained he had been mistaken for another man.

Charity Worker Here

Mr. Gouverneur P. Hance, Superior of St. Barnabas Brotherhood, will visit Monessen on Sunday next, and preach in Trinity Episcopal church. Mr. Hance is one of the most remarkable workers amongst the poor in the whole of Allegheny County. He started 15 years ago without any funds to care for incurable men and boys and today he is caring for 80 men and boys in a large fireproof building. The home ministers to all irrespective of faith, color or nationality and is permanently reserved for the sick poor, no one with money being admitted. Mr. Hance, or Brother Gouverneur, as he is known, is a remarkable speaker and it is hoped many will take the opportunity of hearing his message.

REPUBLICAN IN POLITICS

HABITUAL MOTIVES

It is hard to get constant, persistent work unless there is some persistent mood behind it Here is a man who had worked in a sweatshop with dogged determination, but when someone found him a good job at generous wages he began to be negligent and indifferent Why?

To be sure he had worked beyond his strength. But he had also worked in bitterness of soul and resentment. He had also been trying to avoid further humiliation and defeat. He had had some obscure feeling that through the very work that he did for his oppressors he might prove himself superior to them. That was all that he had time or strength to think of. And now the urge of the sweatshop was gone, he had nothing more to resent, he had ceased to have oppressors. What was there left for such a man to work for?

Gratitude to his new employer? Yes, and at times it stirred him, as it might stir a child, to a burst of energy. But he was not used to the feeling, it did not fit his habits of life, and he simply did not know how to make it serve as a basis for steady work.

Fun and a few luxuries for all the family? He had steadfastly put them out of his life and schooled himself to forget them. How could he turn now and work persistently for them.

And so with all the rest There were reasons enough for working, but they were not the reasons that made him work before, and they made an appeal to a total frame of mind that he did not feel at home in. No wonder that he was relievable. It takes time to turn slaves into responsible free men .

COUNT TEN

The cry of "fire" in a moving picture theatre in New York the other day resulted in the death of six persons, trampled to death beneath the feet of panic-stricken hundreds making pellmell for the escapes

Some day there may be a cry of "fire" in a crowd of which some of those who read this column will be numbered.

When that alarming cry is raised the first impulse is to jump and run.

Don't do it! More people have killed trying to get out of burning buildings than have met death by flames.

When you hear somebody yell "fire" remember that six of every ten such alarms are false. Sit or stand quietly where you are Count ten before you move and while you are counting look about you for the nearest and safest way out Then proceed quietly and slowly to the exit, even though the flames be hot on your trail.

Don't have it said of you that you were one of a crowd who escaped from a building leaving the mangled bodies of children trampled to death behind you

CLOSED FACTORIES

A good many factories and mills in various parts of the country are reported as closed That is the inevitable outcome of a period of high prices Only a fraction of the people have been able to increase their income as much as cost of living increased Naturally all those who lagged behind, have cut down their purchases of goods.

Business men who have secured high profits, and workers who have demanded more pay for less work raised the price level to such a point that many people can no thus The inevitable result is some slowing down of production.

High prices and regular prosperity do not go along together. The only way to obtain regular employment and steady business, is to keep prices and production costs down to lowest level possible. It pays better for all elements in the long run.

WHAT ONE ROAD HAS DONE

Figures concerning the benefits secured by building the new concrete highway from Toronto to Hamilton, Ont, show what results follow road improvement. It is estimated that land values have increased $6,000,000 along this 40 mile strip of road.

Farmers living 15 miles out of Toronto could formerly make three trips a week by team into the city and they had to be up early and late. Now they can make 12 trips a week with motor trucks and do it comfortably. Many farmers sell all their product at their own front doors to automobile parties.

The country traversed by this road has brightened up as a result of the improvement. Not every road project could show so much gain, since this highway is near a big city, but the gains from such improvements commonly exceed expectations

Miss Louise Pehl, as ..... Teddy Dawson
John O'Conner (in love with Teddy), as ..... Jack
Miss Marie BeCaskey, (Teddy's chum) as ..... Ethel
Alfred Allen, as ..... Teddy's Father
Rhinard Woods, as ..... "Spiggy"
Charles Edwards, as ..... A Young Inventor
Miss Mary James and Miss Mary Bartish, as ..... Ethels chums

The story deals with the efforts of a lovelorn young man who tries a series of unique proposals to get the girl to say yes. His trials and tribulations in doing so form the theme for a rollicking comedy. An aeroplane accident brings her consent in a way that surprised the young man himself.

Picture includes Monessen High School Football Team, High School rooters, Monessen Volunteer Fire Department, Monessen Aeroplane Co., with David Ruse., and many local business houses.

This is the first time that a cast from Monessen has ever appeared in a moving picture with a story and plot.

Picture Appears at 12:30, 2:15, 4:00, 5:45, 7:30 and 9:15

Also Eva Novak in "WANTED AT HEADQUARTERS" and an International News completes the program.

To Reopen Mine

By reason of their using "combative methods" the Fayette mine of the Lowber Coal company, near Fayette City, was virtually placed in operation yesterday, despite the fact that five main entries to the fire confines still remain posted.

"The plant is in operation you may say," Inspector Harry Phythyon supervising head of the fire fighting forces at the Fayette mine, said last night. "The work we have done is little less than a miracle, when you stop to consider that 150 men are regularly employed and that 142 are now at work you will appreciate what it means to have an intelligent manipulation of concerted energy."

Special Services

A service which shall be of special interest to the members of St. Paul's Lutheran church, Rev. Paul Weidley, pastor, will be held on Sunday, at the hour of the morning service. The annual Every-Member Canvass will be conducted by members of the congregation on Sunday afternoon. The morning service will be devoted to this cause, and matters of very practical importance to the congregation will be discussed. Every member who can possibly do so, should be present at this service. The pastor is especiall anxious that all the men who have been appointed as canvassers be present at this service, to receive their information to be used in their visitation, and to be commissioned to this work.

To the Powers That Be:—

The situation at Wireton is still alarming. From reports and newspaper circulations, our attention has been called to witness the fact that a great deal of holding up and robbing is going on upon the public thoroughfares, which make it unsafe for anyone to be out late at night, or early in the morning. I positively believe that this condition should and ought to be remedied. This unsafe state of affairs does not make it dangerous for the working man on pay nights alone, but also for any man or woman who may have occasion to be out at night. When a a man has robbery in his mind and heart he will prey upon any man, all he wants is a chance.

With school houses being burned and men being attacked who are laboring to make an honest living for their families conditions are becoming very alarming. I think it would be very wise that the present police force be strengthened by putting on additional ones, and thereby the public will be protected and crime will be eliminated. Believing as I do, I therefore appeal to the powers that be, to make some disposition of this matter. It would be better to do this than to have some honest man beat to death or some woman or girl assaulted. I have people up around the bridge who are actually afraid to come to church at night, for fear of being attacked.

I pray God that this matter will be taken in hand and that some steps will be taken to safeguard the public.

Rev. D. D. Dantley.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

I'd rather be a booster than a knocker
any day;
I'd rather tinge with hope than doubt
the words I have to say.
I'd rather miss my guess
On another man's success
Than to view his bitter struggle and to prophesy his fall.
I'd rather say "He's coming"
Than "He's going" when I'm summing
Up the labors of my brothers, I would rather boost them all.

I'd rather be a "could be"
If I could not be an "are"
For a "could-be" is a "may-be"
With a chance of touching par.
I'd rather be a "have-been"
Than a "might-have-been" by far.
For a "might-have-been" has never been,
And a "has-been" was once an "are".

I'd rather be a yellow dog
And sneak around and yelp,
Or else a bump upon a log,
If I couldn't boost and help.
For a yellow dog is just a yellow dog,
He can't help being yellow.
And a harmless bump upon a log
Don't knock the other fellow.

Jack Dempsey a New Type of Ring "Champ"

By HENRY L. FARRELL

(United Press Staff Correspondent)

New York, Nov. 27—Jack Dempsey, king of the world's heavyweights, was in the center of a buzzing group of scribes during one of the recent conferences for the Dempsey-Carpentier bout.

"Called you up at eleven o'clock last night but couldn't get you," one of the scribes said to him

"Eleven o'clock?" the big champ answered. "No wonder you couldn't get me. I'm between the sheets every night at ten."

He wasn't talking for publicity—he doesn't need a press agent. He was telling the truth.

From personal observations Dempsey is an unusual heavyweight champion. Success hasn't turned his head; temptation hasn't felled him. He's the same affable boy with the same pleasant smile that won him friends by the legion in Toledo. He's the same clean living athlete in the same perfect condition that enabled him to batter down one of the biggest men in the history of the game.

Other champions in other days succumed to the "bright lights." Others found training a bore and a task when they reached the summit of success. With greenback passports into fast circles, they went the pace that kills But not so Dempsey. Critics after looking him over in training have given the opinion that he's in better form now than on that Fourth of July a year ago when he won the championship. He has the clear eye and the ruddy tinged skin of an athlete in perfect condition

"How do you put in a day?" he was asked.

"Well, I pile out about 6 o'clock and after some setting up exercises I do a turn through Central Park," he said. "Then a good breakfast and a rest of an hour or so and then a long walk. After lunch I go over to training quarters and put in two or three hours with the rope, the bells, the medicine ball, some shadow boxing and a few rounds with Bill Tate, Ray Smith and some other boys who came around at different times. I mix golf in every time I get the chance. It's great exercise and first class diversion."

Practically all the prominent fighters around New York occupy places of prominence at the weekly boxing shows in Madison Square Garden, but Dempsey is seldom seen there.

"I like to watch the bouts," he explained. "But late hours and an evening in a smoke filled room do more harm than good."

Dempsey has a lot of personality. He has that happy faculty of meeting people well and remembering them the second time. He never "high-brows". He's accessible at all times and he'll dig in his pocket for any cause.

Talk with him for an hour and he will scarcely ever speak in the first person. He's no master of English but he's grammatical and he isn't handicapped with a lot of vulgar parlance of the ring.

It's a hard task to get him to talk about any of his conquests. He always refers to one of his vanquished opponents as a "mighty good boy."

During one of his recent fanning bees with a bunch of admirers he listened with tolerant politeness to one who insisted on telling him how good he was, how he picked him to beat Williard in three rounds and how he was going to ruin Carpentier.

"Say", the champion interrupted, "seems to me you're a lot more sure about it than I am. I'm not so certain I'm going to win that bout. Carpentier is a great boy. He's bound to be a fighter with the experience he's had I never pick a winner in advance on anything."

College Students To Judge Cattle

(By United Press)

Chicago, Nov. 27—Students from fifteen colleges and universities meet today to participate in a cattle-judging contest in connection with the annual meeting of the International Live Stock Exposition and Horse Fair.

The contest has an international flavor, as Canadian boys have entered against those from Penn State, Ohio, Illinois, Oklahoma, Texas and other state colleges

Texas A. and M. students won the trophy in the stock judging contest last year and students from other colleges will attempt to wrest from them the honor

Much interest is attached to the horse fair which is to be held each night of the exposition. It is said the show is the classiest to be held west of New York.

Demand Would Cause Damage

(By United Press)

Berlin—In connection with the [illegible] against the Entente's demand for delivery of 831,000 milk cows, the German government prepared figures showing Germany had in June of this year 7,004,418 cows, but estimated the milk output at 10 liters instead of 25 as in pre-war times. Then Entente demand was for the delivery of the above named figure in four years, but Germany contends its milk situation is such that this would bring it to a point where the already high infant mortality would be seriously increased. The cows are demanded by France, Belgium, Serbia and Italy, as repayment for cows taken by the Germans during the war.

JOURNEY'S END

By ETHEL M. FARMER.

(© 1920 by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

The noonday sun beat mercilessly down on Elmtown's main street until the very cobblestones under foot gave forth the heat of an oven. Major Carter's sorrel mare, her head hanging limply, like that of a toy horse on a worn-out elastic, bore in stolid patience the flies buzzing about her ears —too weary to swish her tired old tail.

After the wholly unnecessary precaution of tying the drowsing mare to a nearby hitching post, the widow of the late, well-remembered Major Carter made her way past a row of languid radishes and drooping lettuce heads which adorned the front of Elmtown's combined grocery store and meat market. Once inside, she rested her capacious market basket upon the counter as with an abstract air she awaited the clerk's attention.

"Good morning, good morning, Mrs. Carter! Ain't you a little late getting down this morning?"

Recalled to herself by that worthy's voice, she inquired gently:

"Have you some real nice tenderloin steak today? About two pounds, I think.

"Yes, ma'am," the butcher replied cordially; "right off the ice'"

But the tiny package he put in the old lady's basket never in the world weighed more than a fraction of what she had ordered. This fact, however, passed unnoticed; she was calling for three dozen of eggs and four loaves of bread.

The butcher, his back turned to shield his action from the lady's eyes, put three eggs in a bag. These and a single loaf of bread he placed beside the meat in the basket. Still, with the same occupied air, his customer paid what would have been a surprisingly small amount for her purchases and departed.

The diminutive figure of an "errand boy," who had been interestedly observing the transaction from behind the shelter of a cheese box, now stepped into view. He addressed himself to the man:

"That's the way yuh do 'em, is it!"

The butcher turned with a sudden softened look in his eyes.

"Poor old soul," he said, "she can't remember they are all gone. She comes in here day after day, ordering food enough to feed a family of four men. I don't suppose she has ever rightly gotten over the shock—two sailor sons drowned at sea, the youngest lost in France and the major snuffed out overnight. Folks say she just lives in the past, always waiting for those boys and wondering why they don't come."

Twenty minutes later Martha Carter drove the mare into the barn, quite as ramshackle an affair as the beast itself. When she turned her tired feet down the path worn to the kitchen door by the three boys, whose happy, hungry faces she was always expecting to see, her mind was pitilessly sane.

No, they would never come back; they were gone, gone.

The bare, brown canes were leafless. But there was no surprise in her faded eyes: she had known now for several weeks that it was dead. Jim's rose was dead: yes, and Louis—they were all dead. The tears streamed unheeded down her thin, brown cheeks; her heart was dead, too.

At last, with a small trembling hand, she dried her eyes and turned to go, but of a sudden, something caught her attention. She stooped quietly over the tiniest bush and the pulse in her withered throat fluttered—for a heart-breaking second stood still! John's rose was alive. Yes, yes, there was a wee bud on the stem! Yet, why if it had not died, did it wait till July to leaf out? There was no one to answer the unspoken question, but the warm drops that sparkled on the last little bush were tears of gladness.

The rest of the day the widow spent in reassuring herself. Why, of course, her baby couldn't have left her. Before her eyes flashed a picture of the day more than 20 years ago, when John, yellow-headed and round as a butter ball, first wobbled on his uncertain little legs. His father was holding the tail of his lacy white dress, while she on her knees waited with outstretched arms to receive the bold adventurer. What bravery that journey required! But he had come—two courageous steps and he was crowing in her arms, triumphant.

"Oh, darling, darling," she had said, snuggling a kiss in the pink folds of his little fat neck, "May your journeys always end in your mother's arms."

The sun sank at last, and with the sweet, grassy scented dusk, that sense of waiting which for so long had pervaded the mother's heart deepened. She felt her boy coming. Before the dim mirror over the kitchen sink she patted her soft hair. She "tidied up" her black dress and smoothed the creases from a fresh white apron. Once, even as she trimmed the lamp wick, she caught herself humming a bit of a gospel tune.

The stars were shining in the deep sky when the kitchen door opened quickly. A tall boy stood on the threshold, his tanned face radiant with joy From beyond the yellow circle of the lamps light a little, white-haired figure emerged, eager arms extended.

"Oh! Johnny boy, Johnny, I knew you would come!"

And [illegible] his cheek against [illegible] the boy white

CHARM OF HOUSE OF LORDS

Upper Chamber of the British Parliament Well Worth a Visit From the Traveler.

As the ordinary stranger takes his seat in the gallery and surveys the house of lords, he sees much to charm his eye, to kindle his imagination, and even to stimulate his sense of reverence, writes a correspondent of the London Times. He feels humbled, if not intimidated by the almost religious solemnness of the place. It is glowing in gold and colors. All the glory of the "tiger moth's deep damasked wings" gleams in its splendid decorations. Yet there is nothing gorgeous in the scene. The subdued light of a cathedral—"dim and yellow," as Shelley found it in Milan—prevails, transforming things that might otherwise strike upon the senses as garish into a delight to the eye, and an inspiration to the mind. Everything heightens the impression that one is in the beautiful chapel of an ancient cathedral rather than in a modern legislative chamber.

The lofty stained-glass windows have blue and crimson figures of the kings and queens of England. Most of them were worldly minded men and women, but like saints they look in their antique garments, and the seeming of rapt meditation and ecstatic introspection on their faces. Between the windows are pedestals on which stand large bronze statues of knights in armor, grave and stern of aspect, leaning on their naked swords and lances. They recall times when the battle of principles was fought not with words of subtle-minded and ready-tongued men in frock coat and silk hat, but with sword and battle axe, wielded by brawny soldiers on prancing steeds.

FOUGHT WAR OVER LAP DOG

Matter of History That Conflict Between the Florentines and Citizens of Pisa Began Thus.

One of the bitterest of the minor wars of history was fought over a lap dog. In the thirteenth century a Florentine emissary attending the coronation ceremonies of Frederick II saw and admired a lap dog belonging to a cardinal. The church official, noting the admiration, promptly assured the Florentine that the dog was his, and the emissary agreed to send for it. The ambassador from Pisa saw and admired the same dog, and was just as promptly promised it on the morrow. Both men sent for the dog, but the Florentine's servant, being first, carried it away. The citizens of Rome, hearing of the incident, began to joke about it, and the visiting Florentines were especially vicious about the matter. Street fights began and when news of the affair reached Pisa the citizens seized all the Florentine shipping in the bay.

The war that followed was first of a series that ended with Pisa falling before the triumphant Florentines, and the beginning of the wane of her power. The famous leaning tower of Pisa was only one skyscraper of a score or more, although the others have long since crumbled down. These towers proved valuable in the attacks of the Florentine army, but one by one were overcome, and the first city of the world to have a skyscraper skyline lost its unique standing.

Black Plague in Germany

(By United Press)

Berlin—Six million persons, or one out of every ten inhabitants in Germany are afflicted with social disease according to scientific calculations. Efforts are being made to increase the present laws so as to guard against spread of this plague.

In some communities the law requires the registration of all persons so diseased; and it is possible that reformers will undertake to make this a national law. Likewise efforts are being made to alter the present practice whereby a physician is bound to secrecy as to his client's affliction with social disease.

German Industry is Impaired

(By United Press)

Chemnitz, Germany—The German stocking industry, once one of the most flourishing, has fallen on bad times. This is partly attributable to the natural retrogression resulting from the war, partly to exchange questions which make import raw materials difficult and partly to the development of the stocking industry in America and the budding development in Australia

The German plants are racing about to develop "specialties" such as mixed colors in the hope that they will be able to regain something of their old standing on the world's market.

SICK WOMEN HEAR ME

You Can Be Free from Pain as I Am, if You Do as I Did.

Harrington, Me.—"I suffered with backache, pains through my hips and such a bearing down feeling that I could not stand on my feet. I also had other distressing symptoms. At times I had to give up work. I tried a number of remedies but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did me more good than anything else. I am regular, do not suffer the pains I used to, keep house and do all the work. I recommend your medicine to all who suffer as I did and you may use my letter as you like."—Mrs. MINNIE MITCHELL, Harrington, Me.

There are many women who suffer as Mrs. Mitchell did and who are being benefitted by this great medicine every day. It has helped thousands of women who have been troubled with displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, that bearing down feeling, indigestion, and nervous prostration.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound contains no narcotics or harmful drugs. It is made from extracts of roots and herbs and is a safe medium for women. If you need special advice write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

One of the strangest religious sects in the world is known as the Yezedi, a race of mixed Kurdish and Arabian blood. They worship the devil, and believe he will rule the earth for 10,000 years, 4,000 of this number having already passed. On the theory that Jesus is good, and will not harm them, they give most of their devotion and sacrifice to the devil who, they assert, will at the end of the next 6,000 years, be put into hell, where he will weep so hard he will put out the fires, and then will be pardoned and given back his rightful place in heaven.

The Yezedi believe that there were 71 Adams and a similar number of Eves, and that the originals once had a great dispute as to who was the most important, the man or the woman. To prove the matter the women spit in one great jar and the men in another, and the jars were the sealed for nine months. At the end of that period they were opened, and from the women's jar leaped a pile of snakes and worms, while from the men's jar came a beautiful boy and girl. In spite of their strange beliefs they are very industrious, honest, hospitable and kindly, although steeped in dense ignorance, one phase of their religion forbidding them to learn letters.

Words in English Language.

The number of English words not yet obsolete, but found in good authors, or in approved usage by correct speakers, including the nomenclature of science and the arts, does not probably fall short of 100,000, says George Perkins Marsh. Few writers or speakers use as many as 10,000 words, ordinary persons of fair intelligence not above 3,000 or 4,000. If a scholar were to be required to name, without examination, the authors whose English vocabulary was the largest, he would specify the all-embracing Shakespeare, and the all-knowing Milton. And yet in all the works of the great dramatist there seem not more than 15,000 words; in the poems of Milton not above 8,000. The whole number of Egyptian hieroglyphic symbols does not exceed 800, and the entire Italian vocabulary is said to be scarcely more extensive.

Egg Shows Miracle.

One cannot find among the multitude of wonders in nature anything more marvelous than the development of an egg, writes Elsa G. Allen, in the American Forestry Magazine. Whether it be a butterfly which flourishes for a day, only to die after depositing its eggs, or a reptile which lazily leaves its eggs with only the warm sand to mother them, or a fish, like the salmon, which with incredible strength, jumps the rapids to spawn in the upper reaches of rivers, or most appealing of all a bird which builds a beautiful nest for its treasures, the egg in every case is structurally the same, and the miracle of life unfolds according to the same laws of cell division.

Jumped Into a Fortune

(By United Press)

Berlin—Fritz Schaaf, Hotel Adlon page boy jumped into a fortune. That is literally true. A film company wanted someone who would jump from a tower several hundred feet high into a net. Schaaf, 19 years old, allowed he was willing to try a "Steve Brodie," especially as there was money in it.

He jumped while the movie machine cranked and came out sound except for a wrenched ankle. The company has put 75,000 marks in trust for him until he is of age after which he hopes eventually to get into the hotel or restaurant business for himself. The money is about the equivalent of an ordinary worker's wages for six years.
